Inbound Capital helps Wolf Spring successfully raise $2M Seed Round

Wolf Spring (www.wolfspring.dog), the first functional beverage company for dogs, announced it has closed its $2 million seed round.

Congratulations to fast-growing US-based dog nutrition specialist WOLF SPRING for the success of its seed round! Inbound Capital is proud to have contributed to this key milestone paving the way for WOLF SPRING to be the modern one-stop-shop for dog wellness.

Launched in 2020 by French co-founders Xavier Delestrade and Etienne Legangneux – who have complementary Consumer, Start-up and Finance backgrounds - NYC-based WOLF SPRING provides an easy-to-use and affordable solution for dog parents looking to complement their dogs’ diet and improve their health.

WOLF SPRING’s all-natural elements formulas developed with vets have been an instant hit with dog parents across America, online and in hundreds of pet stores.

On top of allowing WOLF SPRING to increase its online and retail distribution in North America and accelerate its growth, this funding round has given WOLF SPRING the opportunity to further strengthen its smart investor base, including angel investors with strong experience in the Consumer and the Pet industries like the founders of Pet Circle and of Dog Buddy.com as well as Directors of leading US Pet-focused funds.

"Many thanks to INBOUND CAPITAL for their help in this fund raising process." – Etienne Legangneux, Co-Founder of WOLF SPRING

"Because WOLF SPRING is at the heart of pet humanisation trends and a shining example of "French Tech meet Pet Tech" with impressive founders and also because it showcases again our Consumer expertise as well as our North American capabilities, we are very proud to have contributed to WOLF SPRING's successful seed round." – David Chermont, CEO & Founder of Inbound Capital
